Immigration Betrayal!

To solve the immigration problem, we must first understand why it exists. And that requires digging deeper than just blaming desperate foreigners for crossing our borders illegally in search of a better life. Indeed, the real reason why both illegal and legal immigration are out of control is because it serves an influential cabal targeting our freedom. And only Congress, under pressure from an informed electorate, can stop the betrayal.

The Intended Damage

Massive immigration that does not assimilate subverts our culture — the culture that supports freedom. This is not racism or xenophobia. It was the attitude of America's founders.

Alexander Hamilton argued that our goal should be “to render the people of this country as homogeneous as possible” as that “must tend as much as any other circumstance to the permanency of their union and prosperity.”

Immigrants who do not assimilate create conflict in society (useful to would-be totalitarians), or in Hamilton's words: “In the composition of society, the harmony of ingredients is all-important, and whatever tends to a discordant intermixture must have an injurious tendency.”

With today's massive government welfare extended to illegal immigrants, the economic strain undermines the middle class, another bulwark of freedom. Then, of course, the criminal element, terrorists, and drugs coming across our porous southern border help to destabilize society. In particular, smuggled heroin fuels the opioid epidemic, which serves the goals of those seeking more government power and a submissive population.

Organized Subversion

The Insiders of an organized Conspiracy have supported specific programs that have led to America's immigration crisis. For example, politicians carrying out the Insiders'

Importing revolution: The Establishment media regularly ignore the extensive revolutionary network behind the immigrant rights and sanctuary movements and its financial support from major tax-exempt foundations. One key player in the network has been the far-left Industrial Areas Foundation (IAF), founded by Marxist and radical organizer Saul Alinsky. America's enemies, including the Insider Establishment, see massive immigration as a way to destroy a culture that supports freedom.

agenda have encouraged illegal immigration by creating government welfare and promoting amnesty. They have also undermined border enforcement by refusing to adequately fund the border patrol or even repair fences.

These Insiders have supported socialism and conflict around the world, also encouraging illegal immigration. And wars and pogroms by totalitarian regimes, whose birth can be credited to the Insiders, create pressure on America (and European nations) to accept refugees. In addition to the sheer numbers of immigrants, several Establishment-promoted programs (see below) serve to discourage assimilation.

The “Open Borders” Movement

For decades, Robert L. Bartley (CFR) used his position as editorial page editor of the Wall Street Journal to influence conservative readers, arguing that the nation-state was finished and that America should have open borders.

Insiders have promoted hemispheric integration via NAFTA and the Free Trade Area of the Americas. In May 2005, just a few years after the 9-11 attacks, the CFR’s “Independent Task Force on the Future of North America” issued its report, “Building a North American Community.” The report proposed a North American Security Perimeter as a substitute for enforcing national borders.

The radical immigrants’ rights organizations also subvert border enforcement. But these organizations didn’t just spring up by themselves, they had Establishment funding, most notably from the Ford Foundation. The Ford Foundation essentially created the Chicano movement and has supported so-called immigrants’ rights organizations challenging deportations in court.

Legal aid organizations, immigrants’ rights groups, and radical churches have widely distributed “The Bill of Rights for the Undocumented Worker.” Article VII demands: “Every immigrant worker shall be guaranteed the same rights enjoyed by U.S. citizens, especially the right of access to free and adequate social and health services, child-care and other similar social benefits.” And Article VIII states: “Every immigrant worker shall have the right to quality public education in his or her native language....”

Note: When Trilateralist Jimmy Carter became president in 1977, he chose “immigrants’ rights” activist Leonel J. Castillo to head the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). Castillo adopted the euphemism “undocumented workers” as the official INS term for illegal immigrants.

Establishment Foundations and the federal government have also aggressively promoted “multiculturalism” as the new American ethic. Students in schools everywhere are being hammered with the idea that all cultures, even the most primitive, are equally enriching for our nation and must be given equal treatment.

National Suicide

Three decades ago (1988), The New American magazine tried to sound the alarm: “Invasion. That’s what we are witnessing: an ongoing invasion that has been escalating for over a decade. Each day, at hundreds of points along our southern border, thousands of people from countries all over the world are entering the United States illegally.... [Even with meager resources], for six years running the Border Patrol has apprehended well over one million illegal aliens per year.... A visible effect of our uncontrolled immigration is what is increasingly referred to as the ‘Third World colonization’ of the United States. Large sections of major U.S. cities now resemble Mexico City, San Salvador, Bombay, and Calcutta — with tens of thousands of people living in cardboard and tin shanties, or sleeping in the streets.”

By 1996, the Sacramento Bee reported: “Nearly one in four students in California’s public schools — more than 1.25 million kids — understands little or no English.”

Changing our Immigration Law

Legislation promoted by liberal politicians implementing the Insiders’ agenda inspired much of the invasion. Senators Robert F. and Edward Kennedy supported the Immigration Reform Act of 1965. The new priorities in our immigration law would emphasize “our obligation” to the rest of the world.

But the subversion didn’t stop there. When President Carter couldn’t get Congress to provide amnesty for illegal immigrants, he created a commission headed by Reverend Theodore Hesburgh (CFR and fellow Trilateralist) to study the problem and make recommendations. The recommendations were incorporated into the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act (IRCA).

IRCA was sold to the public as

James Madison: In his report on immigration to the First Congress, James Madison urged that America “welcome every person of good fame [who] really means to incorporate himself into our society, but repel all who will not be a real addition to the wealth and strength of the United States.”

a “solution” to our immigration problem, but it had the opposite effect. Granting amnesty to millions of illegal aliens simply emboldened millions more to violate our borders in hopes of similar amnesties. And those who became citizens took advantage of the liberalization of the law re chain migration.

Steps to a Solution

The initial step must be to create recognition among a wider audience of why immigration is out of control and why Washington currently will frustrate any real solution. That requires exposing conspiratorial influence, objectives, and actions, along with highlighting the refusal of politicians and the controlled media to expose the domestic subversion. An expensive Southern wall provides no defense against the subversion from within.

At the same time, that understanding must be turned into effective action. What is needed is informed and organized public pressure on Congress — pressure to stop the betrayal and protect our heritage. In the face of conspiratorial inroads and influence today, these steps require the right organization and leadership — a much larger Freedom First Society.

Congress: Just Vote the Constitution!

We have two parties here, and only two. One is the evil party, and the other is the stupid party.... Occasionally, the two parties get together to do something that’s both evil and stupid. That’s called bipartisanship.

— M. Stanton Evans

Although Evans’ clever assessment may appear to have an element of truth, the reality is not so nice. With regard to the leadership of the two parties, we are really dealing with “wolves” versus “wolves in sheep’s clothing.” This is particularly apparent when it comes to the House GOP leadership and government spending.

Rather than use the House’s power of the purse effectively to starve unconstitutional programs, by passing 12 independent appropriations bills (“regular order”), the House GOP leadership regularly sets the stage so a major compromise with socialist Democrats appears inevitable. And the Establishment media join in the deception to ensure conservative voters accept the sellout as necessary to avoid a government-wide shutdown.

After voting against an omnibus appropriations bill last year, representative Thomas Massie (R-KY) summarized the situation:

House Leadership and the media have led the public to believe that passing one giant omnibus every year, at the last minute, is a legitimate way to fund the government and that anything else will result in a total government shutdown. Both are false. We should write, debate, amend, and pass 12 separate appropriations bills as the law prescribes, so that if any one bill fails to pass, only 1/12th of the Federal government shuts down.

Last September, just prior to the start of the new 2018 fiscal year, the House leadership set the stage for the coming sellout. The appropriations subcommittees had completed all 12 bills. The House had already passed 4 of them, earlier in July, unfortunately as a minibus. However, rather than consider the next 8 individually on the floor of the House, incredibly the leadership chose to have all 12 voted on as an omnibus! In a following press conference, Paul Ryan boasted at achieving “regular order” so soon:

This is a big day. This is a big day in the House of Representatives. Today, the people’s House passed all 12 funding bills on time.... This is the first time the House has done that since 2009.... We’ve done our job for the people, but more importantly we did our job the right way. We did it through regular order.

It was NOT regular order! The House had forfeited its leverage in the Senate. It was widely understood at the time that the House omnibus was dead on arrival in the Senate. The House vote was pure window dressing. The result has been a series of continuing resolutions, ignoring committee work, leading up to the latest “crisis” and eventual sellout.

This points to our task — to expose the deception, help the public understand what a determined constitutionalist House could accomplish, and build “Voter-Supplied Backbone.” Sharing key website posts and our scorecard analyses is one way to do just that.

Grow to Win!

In early January, we sent a sample post-notification email to FFS members for whom we had an active email address. Members were either given the opportunity to unsubscribe (Utah and Idaho members) or invited to subscribe (all others).

We have been pleased with the response, but we realize it will take awhile to get many of our members who are less active with email on board. If you aren’t yet receiving these convenient post alerts, please sign up via the “Get Alerts” tab at the top of our home page or respond to our email invitation.

Members who were signed up by mid-January received a notification entitled “Federal Money Grows on Trees!” announcing another addition to our scorecard, which members could share conveniently.

Save Our Constitution!

by Andrew Carver

The right-wing media’s complicity has been crucial in selling conservatives the “snake-oil” medicine of an Article V Con-con. Indeed, the very media that claim to value limited government are putting our Constitution in serious peril.

One “right-wing media” star riding the Con-con bandwagon is Sean Hannity. His national radio show has been featuring a commercial in which he asks listeners to go to the Convention of States (COS) website and sign their petition.

With such media complicity, it is all the more important that every one of our members, to the extent they can, be involved in the fight for truth regarding our Constitution. If you have yet to do so, please send me (andrew.

carver@freedomfirstsociety.org) your email address so I can add you to the list to which I’ve been sending Con-con alerts, and then carry through with as many of the requested actions as you can.

Since one email can reach many legislators (just by copying all their names into the Bcc or other address field), the impact you can have outweighs the time it takes. And I provide the email addresses, as well as talking points and other useful materials.

By the time you receive this, this year’s regular session will have started in 39 states — including Idaho, Utah, and Colorado. We cannot afford to let the spurious arguments of phony “right-wing” political and media leaders deceive state legislators into a dangerous Con-con. Add your voice to those trying to shine the light of truth into these discussions.

Sean Hannity: Convention of States is the right fight to save the nation

Establishment-orchestrated betrayal: The hugely popular Sean Hannity urges his conservative radio listeners to support the Conference of States project (a Con-con). Hannity passionately targets symptoms of decline while ignoring their Establishment source.
